WS 2025/26

Finance and Financial Control Workshop

Course Outline

The aim of the course is to familiarize participants with the practical meaning and implementation of scientific methods. Economics, financial economics and capital markets are shaped by exciting historical events. The selection of books below (see section references) presents historical events and experiences in this field in an appealing way. Some of the authors are experienced practitioners as well as scientists. Accordingly, they discuss both scientifically based and non-scientifically derived attempts to explain the interaction between economics, economic policy and markets from the perspective of the individual market participant or economic agent.

Each course participant has the choice to pick the book of his or her highest preference and to develop ideas and theses within the course. As the books are of length and require time to read and digest, participants should start their reading early on. After a review of the book and the workshop meetings with presentations, participants may then focus their attention to selected parts of the book only.

The final outcome delivered by the course participants is a short, but dense, essay. Based on the concept of Hegelian dialectics, the essay first briefly formulates a scientific thesis from theory. This theory is acquired in previous courses in economics and finance and extended by additional literature research. The essay then works out an antithesis based on the chosen book. Finally, it ends up with a proposed individual synthesis.

Rules for Course Participation

This course is open to all students in the Master-Program, especially those specializing in subject area of Economics, Financial Economics, Econometrics, Accounting or Finance and Taxation. A prerequisite for participation in the course is that participants have successfully completed a Finance module on the Master level (e.g. "Finanzcontrolling" or any other). Most parts of the course material and references are in English. The lecture language is in English (or German depending on the participants preference). The course comprises 3 SWS.

Formal Essay Requirements

Each participant writes a scientific essay based on his or her chosen book from the attached reference list below. All essays have to meet the following formal criteria:

- The essays are limited to a total of 8 pages maximum
- The first page is a title page with at least the following information:
 - Title of the essay (e.g. "Essay on why Finance may matter")
 - Title of the book on which the essay is based (e.g. "based on: 'The wealth of nations' by Adam Smith")
 - Course: Professor Wagner – Finance and Financial Control Workshop
 - Student's name and registration number
 - The date
- The second page contains an abstract (maximum of 11 sentences)
- Pages 3 to 6 contain the main text
- Page 7 contains a list of references
- Font size: 12pt
- Page margins requirements: Left margin: 4 cm; Right margin: 2 cm; Top margin: 3 cm; Bottom margin: 1.5 cm
- Language: German or English
- A signed statement of individual authorship at the end of the paper, "Declaration of Independence" (see also the requirement for the Master thesis).

Examination

Examination contains oral participation and the written essay. The final mark is made up (i) with three quarters based on the written essay and (ii) one quarter based on the oral presentation as well as group discussion participation. Written essays can be delivered any time after essay presentation. The final deadline for essay delivery is February 15th 2026.
